The Pittsburgh Gazette.

FRIDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 2, 1825.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE CINCINNATI GAZETTE.

Cincinnati, August 16, 1825.

In a late number of your paper I was much pleased at seeing the commencement of a very interesting article, giving a sketch of the life of that highly meritorious officer, General Butler. General Richard Butler, who offered up his life, in defence of our western frontier, on the memorable 4th of November, 1791, was second to no officer of his grade, in the Revolutionary Army, and his services were of the highest order, as well while he acted as the second of Morgan, as after he was promoted to the command of a Regiment. In the course of this "sketch" an account of the death of Major Morris, at the skirmish of White Marsh, is given from Marshall's "Life of Washington." The fate of this distinguished member of the Rifle Corps, recalls to my mind a letter on the subject, from Lafayette to Gen. Morgan, which may be worthy of publication, as it serves to perpetuate the worth of the lamented Morris, at the same time that it illustrates the character of that distinguished individual who is yet with us, under the emphatic title of the "Nation's Guest." The original is in my possession among the many military documents of my grandfather.

With great respect, I am your humble servant,

MORGAN NEVILLE.

(THE LETTER.)

My Dear Morgan,

"I have just now received your favor, concerning our late friend, Major Morris, and I need not repeat, how much I am concerned in the interests of his family. I spoke the other day, to his Excellency, on the subject, and I shall write to congress a very particular letter, in which you will be mentioned. I intend to speak in your name, and in that of all your corps, and as being myself honored by their confidence. It is my opinion, that a decent estate must be given to the family, as a mark of gratefulness, from their country, and that his son be promoted as soon as possible.—But, my dear sir, you know how long congress weigh every matter, before they decide, and as Mrs. Morris may be in some want before that time, I am going to trouble you with a commission, which I beg you to execute with the greatest secrecy. If she wished to borrow any sum of money, in expectation of the arrangements of congress, it would not become a stranger unknown to her to offer himself for that purpose; but you might suggest, as from yourself, that you have friends, who, being in the army, do not know what to do with their money; and as they are not in the mercantile, or husbandry way, would willingly let her have one, or many thousand dollars, which she could return in three or four years, &c. &c. One other way would be to let her believe, that you have borrowed or got the money from some town, or public body, you please to mention, or it would be needless to mention, where it comes from. In a word, my dear sir, if with the greatest secrecy,* and the most minute regard for that lady's delicacy, you may find a way of being useful to her, I beg you will communicate it to me immediately.

"I shall, as soon as possible, let you know the answer of congress, when ever it can be got; and in expectation of the pleasure of hearing from you,

"I have the honor to be very sincerely, yours,

"The Marquis de Lafayette."

*As an evidence of the extreme delicacy of the Marquis, and of his desire to keep this affair secret, this letter is in his own hand writing, whilst most of his communications of that period are in the hand of his aid, the late General P. Neville.

Commodore Porter.—In a recent communication to the editor of the National Journal, Commodore Porter holds the following language, which is creditable to him, and ought to rebuke those editors who seem anxious to find cause in his case to censure the administration and the court-martial.

"I have been tried and judged by my peers and I bow with deference to their decision. I have endeavored throughout my trial to defend my honor as became a man, and I trust that I can bear my punishment without repining. No one has yet heard me murmur at my sentence; and until they do, no apology appears necessary for either the Court or the prosecution. I do not express a doubt that justice has been dispensed to me."

Conemaugh and Kiskiminetas Salt Works.

The subjoined article on the subject of these works, will be interesting to many of our readers. It appears that at this time, about 1470 bushels are manufactured per day, being upwards of 460,000 bushels, or nearly 100,000 barrels, per year. When the wells now boring shall be in operation, it may safely be estimated that from 150,000 to 175,000 barrels will be manufactured per year. If salt should rise in price, by the opening of new and easy channels to distant markets, a still greater amount might be made, as the wells which are said to have "blown out," are not, we believe, exhausted, but merely abandoned in favor of others, which, producing water of greater strength, are more profitable. The fuel used in the evaporation is stone-coal, of which inexhaustible mines are found in the immediate vicinity of the works. The salt is sold, wholesale, at the works, and in this market, at about 150 cents per barrel, or 50 cents per bushel.

The manufacture of salt in the western parts of this state, is not confined to the neighborhood of the Conemaugh and Kiskiminetas. It is also made on the Sewickly, in Westmoreland, on Crooked Creek, in Armstrong county, and on the Saw-Mill Run, near this city.

Foreign Salt, in Philadelphia, Baltimore, and New-York, rates at from 45 to 50 cents per bushel. At Harrisburgh, and throughout the middle counties of this state, it sells at about one dollar per bushel.

With a canal to the state of Pennsylvania, the salt of the Kiskiminetas might supply the interior of this state, and be sent, with advantage, to the Philadelphia and Baltimore markets! And with a canal to the lake, it could be profitably disposed of at Erie, if not at Buffalo, notwithstanding the proximity to the latter place of the New-York Saline—for at these latter works the process of evaporation is, for want of coal, effected by wood, now becoming scarce and dear.

From the Westmoreland Republican.

Mr. Wise:—I have been both "amused and instructed" with the "tales of the travellers" which have recently appeared in news papers—And believing that some statements respecting the natural advantages, the resources and improvements, of our own county, may not be uninteresting to many of your readers. I have been induced to collect a few facts, which, I hope, will prove satisfactory.

The land, in Westmoreland county is, generally, of a good quality, and a large body of it first rate—the streams are numerous and the climate healthy. It abounds in inexhaustible beds of stone coal and iron ore, and has many sites for manufacturing establishments, equal to any in Western Pennsylvania. There are several natural curiosities in the country, which are said to be worthy of attention.—And in addition to these there is, what is of lasting importance, an industrious and intelligent population.

There are many establishments and situations in this county, as well as in Armstrong and Indiana, which merit particular attention—but neither time nor opportunity will permit me to collect the information.

Some notice of the Salt establishments may not be uninteresting, and I regret that I have it not in my power to furnish a particular account of those on the Sewickly, where there are several in operation.

The following is a statement of the Salt Establishments on the Kiskiminetas and Conemaugh rivers—the number of wells in operation—those that have been "blown out"—new wells sinking—the number of pans to each well in operation—the quantity of salt made in each pan, per day—the probable number of hands employed, &c.

Making in all—

On the Conemaugh—

5 establishments in operation—16 pans, making per day 120 bushels.
7 do. not in operation.

On the Kiskiminetas—

19 establishments in operation, having 49 pans, and making, per day, at least 1350 bushels of salt, and 29 wells now sinking.

The total amount of salt made, per day, on the Conemaugh and Kiskiminetas, is about 294 barrels, or 1470 bushels, which gives employment to at least 300 persons, and supports, including managers, coopers, blacksmiths, boilers, colliers, &c. &c. and their families, and hands employed in boring, from 12 to 1500 persons.

There are 48 of the above establishments on the Kiskiminetas, within three miles of each other, and within the same limits there are ten wells sinking.—The others are scattered from ½ a mile to 2 and 3 miles apart.

The river is navigable for keel boats, or smaller craft, about 9 or 10 months in the year. There are a number of Grist and Saw Mills on this stream; and there is also a Furnace erecting on the Kiskiminetas, which will be in operation this fall.

There are inexhaustible banks of coal, scattered along these streams, and sites for at least twenty more salt wells. These rivers meander through Somerset, Cambria, Indiana, Armstrong, and Westmoreland counties.

*These works, we are informed, produce each three barrels per day more than is above stated.

Pitts. Gaz.

Launch. The steam boat DECATUR, was launched at Elizabethtown, in this county, on the 27th inst. This beautiful boat is calculated to carry 150 tons, and draws but eleven and a half inches of water. She is owned by Captain Haney, of Louisville, and is intended as a regular packet on the Ohio.—Mercury.

The banks of the Conestogo are at present lined with dead fish, principally suckers, from 18 to 20 inches in length, down to the smallest size. What can have been the cause of this extraordinary mortality among the finny tribe, we cannot say. Perhaps it may have been produced by the extraordinary heat, or some impurity in the water, owing to the immense quantity of vegetable matter which is now in the river.—Lancaster Journal.

"RIGHT OF INSTRUCTION."

ESSAY, NO. VI.

May 13, 1825.

Sir: I informed you, in the essay of the 16th inst. that I should "continue and conclude this subject in another essay." It follows.

I think I have clearly shewn, in the preceding essay, that we had no distinct orders in our political society to be distinctly represented in the several branches of the government—that each of the branches was intended to represent the whole body of the people, in the legislative, judicial and executive departments of the government—and that, the distinct bodies, of electors in the "state legislature" and "electoral colleges," of the states, are altogether unnecessary and unnatural in our system.

But it is nevertheless true, that these "unnecessary and unnatural bodies" do exist, and constitutionally exist, amongst us. And it is almost equally certain, that the features of those "distinctions without differences"—those cancers of the body politic, were smuggled into the constitution, and are preserved in it by the lovers of monarchy and aristocracy amongst us, in imitation of those BLESSING and BLESSD ORDERS and DISTINCTIONS, in the government of mother England! I could laugh at those contrivances, if it was not for the effects which they have already had amongst us, and the future danger I see in them.

The constitution has prescribed the SHADOWS and created the SUBSTANCE of those orders amongst us! and thus it is—that, merely for the sake of form, and without the least shadow of reason or right, we have seen the great body of the people of this union—our "Solomons in council," and our "Samsons in the field," literally "SHORN" of their direct sovereign power and influence, in two branches of the national government, by one act of political legerdemain—and that, by another, the exercise of the assumed "right of arbitrary instruction" by the state legislatures, we have seen it most daringly and flagitiously attempted to deprive them of their direct consequence and influence with their delegates, also, in the THIRD BRANCH of their government!

Surely then, it is time—and full time, if the existence of the union is regarded as a blessing to us and to the world, that the constitution be so altered as to RESTORE TO THE PEOPLE the right of choosing the senators, and the presidents and vice presidents of the United States. For, if history and experience teach us any one political truth, that is more deserving of the attention and regard of mankind than another, it is this—that the great body of the people are the SAFEST depositories and dispensers of their political powers.

Montesquieu asserts, as fundamental maxims in democracies, that "the people, in whom the supreme power resides, ought to do of themselves whatever they conveniently can; and what they themselves cannot rightly perform, they must do by their representatives"—and that "the people should choose their representatives"—because, they "are not properly theirs; unless they have the nomination of them." See Vol. 1, page 23, "Spirit of Laws."

The SAGE of QUINCY, the late president Adams, tells us, in his admirable work in "defence of the American constitution," vol. 3, page 419-420, that the body of the people is the fountain and original of all power and authority, executive and judicial, as well as legislative; and the EXECUTIVE ought to be appointed by the people, in the formation of the constitution, as much as the legislature. That "the people are represented by every power and body in the state, and by every constitutional act they do"—that, "it is true the body of the people have the authority, if they please, to empower the legislature (or other?) assemblies to appoint the executive power; but it would be a fatal error in policy to do it"—because, he continues, by way of illustration, "whoever appoints MINORS and JUDGES, (at pleasure, or for short periods?) will dictate LAW and COURTS."

It is proper to remark here—1st, that I have only extracted so much of Mr. Adams' argument, as is fairly and manifestly applicable to my purpose.—2d, that whoever doubts the entire fitness of the word "sage," in its application to this illustrious personage, or his book, as a pure and sublime standard of democratic authority, will only have to READ it and be CONVINCED, as I have done.

Delegate Convention.—At a meeting of the democratic delegates from the counties of Allegheny and Butler, held at the house of J. Mechling in the borough of Butler, on the 26th inst. for the purpose of nominating members to represent said counties in the legislature of this state—Gen. Wm. Marks of Allegheny was called to the chair and R Criswell of Butler appoint Secretary; when, on motion,

Resolved That John Brown, James C Gilleland, and Dr. James Power of the county of Allegheny, and Wm. Beatty, of the county of Butler, be recommended to the democratic electors of the said counties, as candidates for representatives in the Legislature of this state, at the ensuing general election.

Resolved, That the proceedings of this meeting be published in all the papers in the district.

"RIGHT OF INSTRUCTION."

ESSAY, NO. VI.

May 13, 1825.

Sir: I informed you, in the essay of the 16th inst. that I should "continue and conclude this subject in another essay." It follows.

I think I have clearly shewn, in the preceding essay, that we had no distinct orders in our political society to be distinctly represented in the several branches of the government—that each of the branches was intended to represent the whole body of the people, in the legislative, judicial and executive departments of the government—and that, the distinct bodies, of electors in the "state legislature" and "electoral colleges," of the states, are altogether unnecessary and unnatural in our system.

But it is nevertheless true, that these "unnecessary and unnatural bodies" do exist, and constitutionally exist, amongst us. And it is almost equally certain, that the features of those "distinctions without differences"—those cancers of the body politic, were smuggled into the constitution, and are preserved in it by the lovers of monarchy and aristocracy amongst us, in imitation of those BLESSING and BLESSD ORDERS and DISTINCTIONS, in the government of mother England! I could laugh at those contrivances, if it was not for the effects which they have already had amongst us, and the future danger I see in them.

The constitution has prescribed the SHADOWS and created the SUBSTANCE of those orders amongst us! and thus it is—that, merely for the sake of form, and without the least shadow of reason or right, we have seen the great body of the people of this union—our "Solomons in council," and our "Samsons in the field," literally "SHORN" of their direct sovereign power and influence, in two branches of the national government, by one act of political legerdemain—and that, by another, the exercise of the assumed "right of arbitrary instruction" by the state legislatures, we have seen it most daringly and flagitiously attempted to deprive them of their direct consequence and influence with their delegates, also, in the THIRD BRANCH of their government!

Surely then, it is time—and full time, if the existence of the union is regarded as a blessing to us and to the world, that the constitution be so altered as to RESTORE TO THE PEOPLE the right of choosing the senators, and the presidents and vice presidents of the United States. For, if history and experience teach us any one political truth, that is more deserving of the attention and regard of mankind than another, it is this—that the great body of the people are the SAFEST depositories and dispensers of their political powers.

Montesquieu asserts, as fundamental maxims in democracies, that "the people, in whom the supreme power resides, ought to do of themselves whatever they conveniently can; and what they themselves cannot rightly perform, they must do by their representatives"—and that "the people should choose their representatives"—because, they "are not properly theirs; unless they have the nomination of them." See Vol. 1, page 23, "Spirit of Laws."

The SAGE of QUINCY, the late president Adams, tells us, in his admirable work in "defence of the American constitution," vol. 3, page 419-420, that the body of the people is the fountain and original of all power and authority, executive and judicial, as well as legislative; and the EXECUTIVE ought to be appointed by the people, in the formation of the constitution, as much as the legislature. That "the people are represented by every power and body in the state, and by every constitutional act they do"—that, "it is true the body of the people have the authority, if they please, to empower the legislature (or other?) assemblies to appoint the executive power; but it would be a fatal error in policy to do it"—because, he continues, by way of illustration, "whoever appoints MINORS and JUDGES, (at pleasure, or for short periods?) will dictate LAW and COURTS."

It is proper to remark here—1st, that I have only extracted so much of Mr. Adams' argument, as is fairly and manifestly applicable to my purpose.—2d, that whoever doubts the entire fitness of the word "sage," in its application to this illustrious personage, or his book, as a pure and sublime standard of democratic authority, will only have to READ it and be CONVINCED, as I have done.

We have been told by Mr. John Quincy Adams, in his reply to the committee who announced his election to the presidency by the house of representatives, under peculiar circumstances, arising from the unnatural mode of election, that "in this state of things, could my refusal to accept the trust delegated to me, give an immediate opportunity to the people to form and to express, with a nearer approach to unanimity, the object of their preference, I should not hesitate to decline the acceptance of this eminent charge, and to submit the decision of this momentous question again to their determination.—But the constitution itself has not disposed of the contingency which would arise in the event of my refusal." And surely no one acquainted with the history of his political career, can, in the least, doubt the truth of the assertion.

And finally—we are told by Alexander Hamilton, who was, undoubtedly, one of the greatest statesmen, if not the of the best that ever figured in this or any other country—that "nothing can be more evident than that an exclusive power of regulating elections for the national government, (or either branch of it?) in the hands of the state legislatures, would leave the existence of the union entirely at their mercy. They could, at any moment, annihilate it, by neglecting to provide for the choice of persons to administer its affairs. It is to little purpose to say, that a neglect or omission of this kind would not be likely to take place. The constitutional possibility of the thing, without an equivalent for the risk, is an unanswerable objection. Nor has any satisfactory reason been yet assigned for incurring that risk. The extravagant surmises of a distempered jealousy, can never be dignified with that character. If we are in a humor to presume abuses of power, it is as fair to presume them on the part of the state governments, as on the part of the general government. And, as it is more consonant to the rules of a just theory, to entrust the union with the care of its own existence than to transfer that care to any other hands, if abuses of power are to be hazarded on the one side or on the other, it is more rational to hazard them where the power would naturally be placed, than where it would unnaturally be placed." Federalist, page 370.

Here we see that this great man was in earnest: reasoning, as he really and justly thought, upon the subject of the general government and in favor of the union; as if he was pleasingly conscious, as he undoubtedly was at that moment of the great and lasting benefit he was conferring upon his adopted country and mankind, in promoting the establishment of the one and the perpetuity of the other.

Hence I repeat—that it is time—"AND FULL TIME," that the constitution be so altered, as to RESTORE to the people the right of choosing the senators and the presidents and vice presidents of the United States.

Permit me to "conclude" with the assurance that I am, with great respect, a Marylander as well as

A Federal Democratic Republican.

GEORGIA AFFAIRS.

It will be seen by the documents below, that the Governor of Georgia has been directly informed by the Secretary at War, that the United States will not permit the Creek lands to be surveyed until September 1826. This is as it should be, and we think the decisive stand of the government in this affair, will elicit the approbation of all good men.

Department of War, July 21, 1825.

SIR—Your letter of the 25th of June, addressed to Major Vandeventer, has been received; the answer to which has been intentionally delayed till the result of General Gaines' interview with the Indians at Broken Arrow should be received, as the President had anxiously hoped, in the acquiescence of the Indians in the treaty, to have found the necessity of replying to your inquiries entirely obviated. But as the communications from General Gaines, recently received, have entirely destroyed that hope, a reply has become necessary. The Indians, to the number of 1890, including a large majority of their chiefs and head men of the tribe, have denounced the treaty, as tainted alike with intrigue and treason, and as the act of a very small portion of the tribe, against the express determination of a very large majority—a determination known to the Commissioners. They urge that to force a compliance with an instrument thus obtained, would ill become either the justice or the magnanimity of the U. States, under which they claim to take shelter. These are allegations presenting a question beyond the cognisance of the Executive, and necessarily refers itself to Congress, whose attention will be called to it at an early day after the next annual meeting. Meanwhile, the President, acting on the treaty, as though its validity had not been impeached, finds, by reference to the 8th article of the treaty, the faith of the United States solemnly pledged to protect the Creek Indians from any encroachment, till their removal, in September, 1826. He, therefore, decides, that the entering upon and surveying their lands before that period, would be an infraction of the treaty, whose interpretation and execution, should it remain uncancelled, are alike confided to him. I am, therefore, directed by the President, to state distinctly to your Excellency, that, for the present, he will not permit such entry or survey to be made.

The pain the President has felt in coming to this decision, is diminished by the recollection, that it interferes with no duty imposed on your Excellency, by the laws of Georgia, as a discretion is given you, by the late law of the Legislature, in prescribing the time when the lands embraced by the treaty shall be surveyed. Under all the circumstances, the President permits himself to hope that you will acquiesce in his decision. As General Gaines has been in communication with you on this subject, and as it is the wish of the President you should be in possession of every measure he may find himself constrained to take thereon, I am directed to enclose to your Excellency a copy of General Gaines' instructions of this date.

I have the honor to be your obedient servant,

JAMES BARBOUR.

His Ex. G. M. TROUP,
Governor of Georgia—Milledgeville.

Department of War, July 21st, 1825.

SIR: Yours of the 5th instant has been duly received, with the accompanying documents.

I am directed by the President to express his regret at the failure of your efforts to reconcile the Creeks to an acquiescence in the treaty made at the Indian Springs, as it was his sincere desire to have seen it carried into effect. But the determined opposition of the Indians to the treaty itself, on the alleged grounds of intrigue and treachery, on the part of the portion of the tribe negotiating the treaty, as well as the smallness of their numbers, from which they argue its invalidity, and their solemn appeal to the justice and magnanimity of the United States, creates such an obligation, that we should at least pause before we proceed, or permit others to do so, until these allegations can be thoroughly investigated, and their effect decided by the proper authority; the more especially, as the 8th article of the treaty gives till September of the next year, before the treaty is to be carried into effect, and guaranties them from encroachment till that time. It is in this posture of affairs that Governor Troup insists he will survey the lands. A collision, by overt acts, between the Executive of the Union, and that of a State, is no against the theory of the constitution, and so repugnant to the feelings of the President, that he would determine only under a solemn sense of duty to do in act by which so serious a result would be produced. If Governor Troup should, however, persevere in his declared purpose of surveying the land, against the repeated remonstrances of this department, it will present one of the most unfortunate

TUNNEL UNDER THE THAMES.

The work of excavating a tunnel under the Thames, which had been vigorously commenced, attracts great attention, and many distinguished visitors. We extract the following description of the commencement of this novel undertaking, which will be read with interest. N. Y. Jour.

"Against the gable-end of a house on the works, the Directors have caused to be built, in brick, a fac simile of the perforation which will shortly be begun horizontally across the river, in order to show more strikingly the proportion of height and breadth for carriages, &c. &c. and which will be painted in perspective, and will have a fine effect.—The new steam engine is expected to be very shortly at work, and must greatly expedite the operations. The clay excavated is conveyed into a neighboring field, and is there converting into bricks of patent lar make, to be again used, in its new form, in the construction of this gigantic communication.

"The tunnel will consist of two archways, and in order that there may be no obstruction to carriages, those going from the north to the south shore will pass through one, while those from the south to the north will occupy the other archway.—The passages will be Macadamized, and there will be distinct paths for foot passengers. In the centre, between the two archways and dividing the two roads, will be a line of numerous arches of communication, spacious enough to admit of persons passing from one road to the other; and in each of these arches will be fixed a strong gas-light. The approaches to the entrance of the tunnel will be by circular descents of easy declivity, not exceeding four feet in every hundred. One smaller one for pedestrians; another large one for carriages; and so easy will the descent be, that the heaviest loaded wagon will never need to have the wheel locked.—The descent from the north side will be near to the end of Old Gravel-lane, at the eastern end of London Dock, and, on the south side of the river from a spot near to Rotherhithe Church. The bed of the river has been rigidly examined by frequent and deep borings, in order to ascertain the nature of the strata, and the results have been, we are informed, highly encouraging; the deep parts being uniformly of tenacious, hard, blue, clay. The machinery, by which this excavation is to be made, is the invention of Mr. Brunel. The iron shield, for the protection of the workmen, and for the security of the work as it proceeds, is of an ingenious combination, and of itself is said to weigh ninety tons; and this weight is literally to be pushed through the earth, entering at the shaft on the north side of the river. For this invention Mr. Brunel has obtained a patent. As this large shield, or three storied iron scaffolding, is daily moved to fill up the excavation made by the workmen, it is to be followed closely by the brick-layers, who will make all good; so that the incumbent earth will always be supported by the iron shield, or by compact and well cemented brick work. The size of the tunnel will be thirty-five feet wide, by twenty feet in height; each archway will have about 14 feet clear width (including foot paths) and the whole length of the tunnel will be about one thousand three hundred feet. Should nothing unforeseen prevent it, this novel communication is expected to be opened in less than three years. It will be obvious to every person acquainted with the Thames, that no bridge could cross it where the tunnel is designed to be made, unless it were of a height so great that ships could sail beneath it. Such a bridge has been projected, but the design was soon abandoned.—The tunnel may be regarded as a bridge reversed, and as a channel of intercourse between the shores, at once commodious, and suited to its locality.—Such an intercourse has been for a long time a desideratum, and must we conceive, be much used. It will open a free, and probably an important communication between the counties of Middlesex, Essex, Kent, and Surrey, and the several national and commercial establishments on either shore, and which, in time, will give birth to improvements of no small magnitude. There will be in this tunnel a thickness of fifteen feet of earth between the crown of the tunnel and the bed of the river, and the brick work will necessarily be of the best materials and the most solid nature, and closely cemented with the utmost care."

FRIDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 2, 1825.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

Cincinnati, August 16, 1825.

In a late number of your paper I was much pleased at seeing the commencement of a very interesting article, giving a sketch of the life of that highly meritorious officer, General Butler. General Richard Butler, who offered up his life, in defence of our western frontier, on the memorable 4th of November, 1791, was second to no officer of his grade, in the Revolutionary Army, and his services were of the highest order, as well while he acted as the second of Morgan, as after he was promoted to the command of a Regiment. In the course of this "sketch" an account of the death of Major Morris, at the skirmish of White Marsh, is given from Marshall's "Life of Washington." The fate of this distinguished member of the Rifle Corps, recalls to my mind a letter on the subject, from Lafayette to Gen. Morgan, which may be worthy of publication, as it serves to perpetuate the worth of the lamented Morris, at the same time that it illustrates the character of that distinguished individual who is yet with us, under the emphatic title of the "Nation's Guest." The original is in my possession among the many military documents of my grandfather.

With great respect, I am your humble servant,

MORGAN NEVILLE.

(THE LETTER.)

My Dear Morgan,

"I have just now received your favor, concerning our late friend, Major Morris, and I need not repeat, how much I am concerned in the interests of his family. I spoke the other day, to his Excellency, on the subject, and I shall write to congress a very particular letter, in which you will be mentioned. I intend to speak in your name, and in that of all your corps, and as being myself honored by their confidence. It is my opinion, that a decent estate must be given to the family, as a mark of gratefulness, from their country, and that his son be promoted as soon as possible.—But, my dear sir, you know how long congress weigh every matter, before they decide, and as Mrs. Morris may be in some want before that time, I am going to trouble you with a commission, which I beg you to execute with the greatest secrecy. If she wished to borrow any sum of money, in expectation of the arrangements of congress, it would not become a stranger unknown to her to offer himself for that purpose; but you might say, as from yourself, that you have friends, who, being in the army, do not know what to do with their money; and as they are not in the mercantile, or husbandry way, would willingly let her have one, or many thousand dollars, which she could return in three or four years, &c &c. One other way would be to let her believe, that you have borrowed or got the money from some town, or public body, you please to mention, or it would be needless to mention, where it comes from. In a word, my dear sir, if with the greatest secrecy,* and the most minute regard for that lady's delicacy, you may find a way of being useful to her, I beg you will communicate it to me immediately.

"I shall, as soon as possible, let you know the answer of congress, when ever it can be got; and in expectation of the pleasure of hearing from you, I have the honor to be very sincerely, yours,

"The Marquis de Lafayette."

*As an evidence of the extreme delicacy of the Marquis, and of his desire to keep this affair secret, this letter is in his own hand writing, whilst most of his communications of that period are in the hand of his aid, the late General P. Neville.

Commodore Porter.—In a recent communication to the editor of the National Journal, Commodore Porter holds the following language, which is creditable to him, and ought to rebuke those editors who seem anxious to find cause in his case to censure the administration and the court-martial.

"I have been tried and judged by my peers and I bow with deference to their decision. I have endeavored throughout my trial to defend my honor as became a man, and I trust that I can bear my punishment without repining. No one has yet heard me murmur at my sentence; and until they do, no apology appears necessary for either the Court or the prosecution. I do not express a doubt that justice has been dispensed to me."

Conemaugh and Kiskiminetas Salt Works.

The subjoined article on the subject of these works, will be interesting to many of our readers. It appears that at this time, about 1470 bushels are manufactured per day, being upwards of 460,000 bushels, or nearly 100,000 barrels, per year. When the wells now boring shall be in operation, it may safely be estimated that from 150,000 to 175,000 barrels will be manufactured per year. If salt should rise in price, by the opening of new and easy channels to distant markets, a still greater amount might be made, as the wells which are said to have "blown out," are not, we believe, exhausted, but merely abandoned in favor of others, which, producing water of greater strength, are more profitable. The fuel used in the evaporation is stone-coal, of which inexhaustible mines are found in the immediate vicinity of the works. The salt is sold, wholesale, at the works, and in this market, at about 150 cents per barrel, or 50 cents per bushel.

The manufacture of salt in the western parts of this state, is not confined to the neighborhood of the Conemaugh and Kiskiminetas. It is also made on the Sewickly, in Westmoreland, on Crooked Creek, in Armstrong county, and on the Saw-Mill Run, near this city.

Foreign Salt, in Philadelphia, Baltimore, and New-York, rates at from 45 to 50 cents per bushel. At Harrisburgh, and throughout the middle counties of this state, it sells at about one dollar per bushel.

With a canal to the eastward, through Pennsylvania, the salt of the Kiskiminetas might supply the interior of the state, and be sent, with advantage, to the Philadelphia and Baltimore markets! And with a canal to the lake, it could be profitably disposed of at Erie, if not at Buffalo, notwithstanding the proximity to the latter place of the New-York Saline—for at these latter works the process of evaporation is, for want of coal, effected by wood, now becoming scarce and dear.

From the Westmoreland Republican.

Mr. Wise:—I have been both "amused and instructed" with the "tales of the travellers" which have recently appeared in news papers—And believing that some statements respecting the natural advantages, the resources and improvements, of our own county, may not be uninteresting to many of your readers. I have been induced to collect a few facts, which, I hope, will prove satisfactory.

The land, in Westmoreland county is, generally of a good quality, and a large body of it first rate—the streams are numerous and the climate health. It abounds in inexhaustible beds of stone coal and iron ore, and has many sites for manufacturing establishments, equal to any in Western Pennsylvania. There are several natural curiosities in the country, which are said to be worthy of attention.—And in addition to these there is, what is of lasting importance, an industrious and intelligent population.

There are many establishments and situations in this county, as well as in Armstrong and Indiana, which merit particular attention—but neither time nor opportunity will permit me to collect the information.

Some notice of the Salt establishments may not be uninteresting, and I regret that I have it not in my power to furnish a particular account of those on the Sewickly, where there are several in operation.

The following is a statement of the Salt Establishments on the Kiskiminetas and Conemaugh rivers—the number of wells in operation—those that have been "blown out"—new wells sinking—the number of pans to each well in operation—the quantity of salt made in each pan, per day—the probable number of hands employed, &c.

Making in all—

On the Conemaugh—

7 do. not in operation.

On the Kiskiminetas—

19 establishments in operation, having 49 pans, and making, per day, at least 1350 bushels of salt, and 29 wells now sinking.

The total amount of salt made, per day, on the Conemaugh and Kiskiminetas, is about 294 barrels, or 1470 bushels, which gives employment to at least 500 persons, and supports, including managers, coopers, blacksmiths, boilers, colliers, &c. &c. and their families, and hands employed in boring, from 12 to 1500 persons.

There are 18 of the above establishments on the Kiskiminetas, within three miles of each other, and within the same limits there are ten wells sinking.—The others are scattered from ½ a mile to 2 and 3 miles apart.

The river is navigable for keel boats, or smaller craft, about 9 or 10 months in the year. There are a number of Grist and Saw Mills on this stream; and there is also a Furnace erecting on the Kiskiminetas, which will be in operation this fall.

There are inexhaustible banks of coal, scattered along these streams, and sites for at least twenty more salt wells. These rivers meander through Somerset, Cambria, Indiana, Armstrong, and Westmoreland counties.

*These works, we are informed, produce each three barrels per day more than is above stated.

The banks of the Conestogo are at present lined with dead fish, principally suckers, from 18 to 20 inches in length, down to the smallest size. What can have been the cause of this extraordinary mortality among the finny tribe, we cannot say. Perhaps it may have been produced by the extraordinary heat, or some impurity in the water, owing to the immense quantity of vegetable matter which is now in the river.

"RIGHT OF INSTRUCTION."

ESSAY, NO. VI.

May 18, 1825.

Sir: I informed you, in the essay of the 16th inst. that I should "continue and conclude this subject in another essay." It follows.

I think I have clearly shewn, in the preceding essay, that we had no distinct orders in our political society to be distinctly represented in the several branches of the government—that each of the branches was intended to represent the whole body of the people, in the legislative, judicial and executive departments of the government—and that, the distinct bodies, of electors in the "state legislature" and "electoral colleges," of the states, are altogether unnecessary and unnatural in our system.

But it is nevertheless true, that these "unnecessary and unnatural bodies" do exist, and constitutionally exist, amongst us. And it is almost equally certain, that the features of those "distinctions without differences"—those cancers of the body politic, were smuggled into the constitution, and are preserved in it by the lovers of monarchy and aristocracy amongst us, in imitation of those BLESSING and BLESSED ORDERS and DISTINCTIONS, in the government of mother England! I could laugh at those contrivances, if it was not for the effects which they have already had amongst us, and the future danger I see in them.

The constitution has prescribed the SHADOWS and created the SUBSTANCE of those orders amongst us! and thus it is—that, merely for the sake of form, and without the least shadow of reason or right, we have seen the great body of the people of this union—our "Solomons in council," and our "Samsons in the field," literally "SHORN" of their direct sovereign power and influence, in two branches of the national government, by one act of political legerdemain—and that, by another, the exercise of the assumed "right of arbitrary instruction" by the state legislatures, we have seen it most daringly and flagitiously attempted to deprive them of their direct consequence and influence with their delegates, also, in the THIRD BRANCH of their government!

Surely then, it is time—and full time, if the existence of the union is regarded as a blessing to us and to the world, that the constitution be so altered as to RESTORE TO THE PEOPLE the right of choosing the senators, and the presidents and vice presidents of the United States. For, if history and experience teach us any one political truth, that is more deserving of the attention and regard of mankind than another, it is this—that the great body of the people are the SAFEST depositories and dispensers of their political powers.

Montesquieu asserts, as fundamental maxims in democracies, that "the people, in whom the supreme power resides, ought to do of themselves whatever they conveniently can; and what they themselves cannot rightly perform, they must do by their representatives"—and that "the people should choose their representatives"—because, they "are not properly theirs; unless they have the nomination of them." See Vol. I, page 25, "Spirit of Laws."

The SAGE of QUINCY, the late president Adams, tells us, in his admirable work in "defence of the American constitution," vol. 3, page 419-420, that the body of the people is the fountain and original of all power and authority, executive and judicial, as well as legislative; and the EXECUTIVE ought to be appointed by the people, in the formation of the constitution, as much as the legislature. That "the people are represented by every power and body in the state, and by every constitutional act they do"—that, "it is true the body of the people have the authority, if they please, to empower the legislature (or other?) assemblies to appoint the executive power; but it would be a fatal error in policy to do it"—because, he continues, by way of illustration, "whoever appoints BISHOPS and JUDGES, (at pleasure, or for short periods?) will dictate LAW and GOSPEL."

It is proper to remark here—1st, that I have only extracted so much of Mr. Adams' argument, as is fairly and manifestly applicable to my purposes.—2d, that whoever doubts the entire fitness of the word "sage," in its application to this illustrious personage, or his book, as a pure and sublime standard of democratic authority, will only have to READ it and be CONVINCED, as I have been.

The clouds and storms of party heats and passions, have happily passed over without leaving behind them any very deep traces of their ravages amongst us, and are almost silently sinking in the space beyond our political horizon. It is time then, that the mist and vapors of party prejudices should be dismist and vapors of party prejudices should be dismissed also, and that we be left in "the free and undisputated use of reason and the senses," to make biassed "use of reason and the senses," to make the most of the many political advantages with which the Almighty has been pleased to bless us.

We have been told by Mr. John Quincy Adams, in his reply to the committee who announced his election to the presidency by the house of representatives, under peculiar circumstances, arising from the unnatural mode of election, that, "in this state of things, could my refusal to accept the trust delegated to me, give an immediate opportunity to the people to form and to express, with a nearer approach to unanimity, the object of their preference, I should not hesitate to decline the acceptance of this eminent charge, and to submit the decision of this momentous question again to their determination.—But the constitution itself has not disposed of the contingency which would arise in the event of my refusal." And surely no one acquainted with the history of his political career, can, in the least, doubt the truth of the assertion.

And finally—we are told by Alexander Hamilton, who was, undoubtedly, one of the greatest statesmen, if not one of the best that ever figured in this or any other country—that "nothing can be more evident than that an exclusive power of regulating elections for the national government, (or either branch of it?) in the hands of the state legislatures, would leave the existence of the union entirely at their mercy. They could, at any moment, annihilate it, by neglecting to provide for the choice of persons to administer its affairs. It is to little purpose to say, that a neglect or omission of this kind would not be likely to take place. The constitutional possibility of the thing, without an equivalent for the risk, is an unanswerable objection. Nor has any satisfactory reason been yet assigned for incurring that risk. The extravagant surmises of a distempered jealousy, can never be dignified with that character. If we are in a humor to presume abuses of power, it is as fair to presume them on the part of the state governments, as on the part of the general government. And, as it is more consonant to the rules of a just theory, to entrust the union with the care of its own existence than to transfer that care to any other hands, if abuses of power are to be hazarded on the one side or on the other, it is more rational to hazard them where the power would naturally be placed, than where it would unnaturally be placed." Federalist, page 370.

Here we see that this great man was in earnest: reasoning, as he really and justly thought, upon the subject of the general government and in favor of the union; as if he was pleasingly conscious, as he undoubtedly was at that moment of the great and lasting benefit he was conferring upon his adopted country and mankind, in promoting the establishment of the one and the perpetuity of the other.

Hence I repeat—that it is time—"AND FULL TIME," that the constitution be so altered, as to RESTORE to the people the right of choosing the senators and the presidents and vice presidents of the United States.

Permit me to "conclude" with the assurance that I am, with great respect, a Maryland-er as well as

A Federal Democratic Republican.

GEORGIA AFFAIRS.

It will be seen by the documents below, that the Governor of Georgia has been directly informed by the Secretary at War, that the United States will not permit the Creek lands to be surveyed until September 1826. This is as it should be, and we think the decisive stand of the government in this affair, will elicit the approbation of all good men.

Department of War, July 21, 1825.

SIR—Your letter of the 25th of June, addressed to Major Vandeventer, has been received; the answer to which has been intentionally delayed till the result of General Gaines' interview with the Indians at Broken Arrow should be received, as the President had anxiously hoped, in the acquiescence of the Indians in the treaty, to have found the necessity of replying to your inquiries entirely obviated. But as the communications from General Gaines, recently received, have entirely destroyed that hope, a reply has become necessary. The Indians, to the number of 1890, including a large majority of their chiefs and head men of the tribe, have denounced the treaty, as tainted alike with intrigue and treason, and as the act of a very small portion of the tribe, against the express determination of a very large majority—a determination known to the Commissioners. They urge that to force a compliance with an instrument thus obtained, would ill become either the justice or the magnanimity of the U. States, under which they claim to take shelter. These are allegations presenting a question beyond the cognisance of the Executive, and necessarily refers itself to Congress, whose attention will be called to it at an early day after the next annual meeting. Meanwhile, the President, acting on the treaty, as though its validity had not been impeached, finds, by reference to the 8th article of the treaty, the faith of the United States solemnly pledged to protect the Creek Indians from any encroachment, till their removal, in September, 1826. He, therefore, decides, that the entering upon and surveying their lands before that period, would be an infraction of the treaty, whose interpretation and execution, should it remain uncancelled, are alike confided to him. I am, therefore, directed by the President, to state distinctly to your Excellency, that, for the present, he will not permit such entry or survey to be made.

The pain the President has felt in coming to this decision, is diminished by the recollection, that it interferes with no duty imposed on your Excellency, by the laws of Georgia, as a discretion is given you, by the late law of the Legislature, in prescribing the time when the lands embraced by the treaty shall be surveyed. Under all the circumstances, the President permits himself to hope that you will acquiesce in his decision. As General Gaines has been in communication with you on this subject, and as it is the wish of the President you should be in possession of every measure he may find himself constrained to take thereon, I am directed to enclose to your Excellency a copy of General Gaines' instructions of this date.

I have the honor to be your obedient servant,

JAMES BARBOUR.

His Ex. G. M. TROUP,
Governor of Georgia—Milledgeville.

Department of War, July 21*st*, 1825.

SIR: Yours of the 5th instant has been duly received, with the accompanying documents.

I am directed by the President to express his regret at the failure of your efforts to reconcile the Creeks to an acquiescence in the treaty made at the Indian Springs, as it was his sincere desire to have seen it carried into effect. But the determined opposition of the Indians to the treaty itself, on the alleged grounds of intrigue and treachery, on the part of the portion of the tribe negotiating the treaty, as well as the smallness of their numbers, from which they argue its invalidity, and their solemn appeal to the justice and magnanimity of the United States, creates such an obligation, that we should at least pause before we proceed, or permit others to do so, until these allegations can be thoroughly investigated, and their effect decided by the proper authority; the more especially, as the 8th article of the treaty gives till September of the next year, before the treaty is to be carried into effect, and guaranties them from encroachment till that time. It is in this posture of affairs that Governor Troup insists he will survey the lands. A collision, by overt acts, between the Executive of the Union, and that of a State, is so against the theory of the constitution, and so repugnant to the feelings of the President, that he would determine only under a solemn sense of duty to do so. If Governor Troup should, however, persevere in his declared purpose of surveying the land, against the repeated remonstrances of this department, it will present one of the most unfortunate events which have yet occurred in our history. No possible occurrence has induced the President to weigh, with the deliberate circumspection made necessary, as well by its serious consequences as its high responsibility. His decision thereon has been made and transmitted to Gov. Troup, in a letter of this date, a copy of which I enclose for your information, and by which you will learn the line of conduct which the President has prescribed to himself.

It is still devoutly to be hoped that Governor Troup will abstain from any act that may make it necessary to have recourse to the steps suggested: yet, should he persevere in sending persons to survey the lands embraced within the treaty, you are hereby authorized to employ the military to prevent their entrance on the Indian territory, or if they should succeed in entering the country, to cause them to be arrested, and turn them over to the judicial authority, to be dealt with as the law directs. I have only to add, that I have transmitted to Gov. Troup a copy of this communication,

I have the honor, &c.

JAMES BARBOUR.

TUNNEL UNDER THE THAMES.

The work of excavating a tunnel under the Thames, which had been vigorously commenced, attracts great attention, and many distinguished visitors. We extract the following description of the commencement of this novel undertaking, which will be read with interest. N. Y. pap.

"Against the gable-end of a house on the works, the Directors have caused to be built, in brick, a fac simile of the perforation which will shortly be begun horizontally across the river, in order to show more strikingly the proportion of height and breadth for carriages, &c. &c. and which will be painted in perspective, and will have a fine effect.—The new steam engine is expected to be very shortly at work, and must greatly expedite the operations. The clay excavated is conveyed into a neighboring field, and is there converting into bricks of particular make, to be again used, in its new form, in the construction of this subaqueous communication.

"The tunnel will consist of two archways, and in order that there may be no obstruction to carriages, those going from the north to the south shore will pass through one, while those from the south to the north will occupy the other archway.—The passages will be Macadamized, and there will be distinct paths for foot passengers. In the centre, between the two archways and dividing the two roads, will be a line of numerous arches of communication, spacious enough to admit of persons passing from one road to the other; and in each of these arches will be fixed a strong gas-light. The approaches to the entrance of the tunnel will be by circular descents of easy declivity, not exceeding four feet in every hundred. One smaller one for pedestrians; another large one for carriages; and so easy will the descent be, that the heaviest loaded wagon will never need to have the wheel locked.—The descent from the north side will be near to the end of Old Gravel-lane, at the eastern end of London Dock, and, on the south side of the river from a spot near to Rotherhithe Church. The bed of the river has been rigidly examined by frequent and deep borings, in order to ascertain the nature of the strata, and the results have been, we are informed, highly encouraging; the deep parts being uniformly of tenacious, hard, blue, clay. The machinery, by which this excavation is to be made, is the invention of Mr. Brunel. The iron shield, for the protection of the workman, and for the security of the work as it proceeds, is of an ingenious combination, and of itself is said to weigh ninety tons; and this weight is literally to be pushed through the earth, entering at the shaft on the north side of the river. For this invention Mr. Brunel has obtained a patent. As this large shield, or three storied iron scaffolding, is daily moved to fill up the excavation made by the workmen, it is to be followed closely by the brick-layers, who will make all good; so that the incumbent earth will always be supported by the iron shield, or by compact and well cemented brick work. The size of the tunnel will be thirty-five feet wide, by twenty feet in height; each archway will have about 14 feet clear width (including foot path;) and the whole length of the tunnel will be about one thousand three hundred feet. Should nothing unforeseen prevent it, this novel communication is expected to be opened in less than three years. It will be obvious to every person acquainted with the Thames, that no bridge could cross it where the tunnel is designed to be made, unless it were of a height so great that ships could sail beneath it. Such a bridge has been projected, but the design was soon abandoned.—The tunnel may be regarded as a bridge reversed, and as a channel of intercourse between the shores, at once commodious, and suited to its locality.—Such an intercourse has been for a long time a desideratum, and must we conceive, be much used. It will open a free, and probably an important communication between the counties of Middlesex, Essex, Kent, and Surrey, and the several national and commercial establishments on either shore, and which, in time, will give birth to improvements of no small magnitude. There will be in this tunnel a thickness of fifteen feet of earth between the crown of the tunnel and the bed of the river, and the brick work will necessarily be of the best materials and the most solid nature, and closely cemented with the utmost care."

RANAWAY from the subscriber, living six miles from Louisville, Jefferson county, Ky. on the 17th day of April last, a negro man named BEN; 27 or 28 years old; about 5 feet 8 or 10 inches high; of a tolerably light color, approaching that of an ordinary mulatto; but his hair is short and curly, like that of negroes generally. He is a little round or stoop shouldered, and stout made; has a short, thick hand, and I think he is left handed; his eyes are a little inclined to be gray, not quite as black as negroes' eyes generally: he has rather a sly, down look when accused with his misconduct; has rather a soft, pleasant speech: he pretends to be a methodist by profession, but he may give that up, as I think he does it to cloak his badness: he may change his name, or he may live under the protection of some white man. I will pay Five Hundred Dollars in Specie for the delivery of Ben, to me, at my farm.

OHIO PAPER MILL.

THE subscribers are disposed to Sell or Rent that valuable property situate on Little Beaver Creek, about three fourths of a mile from its junction with the Ohio river, and forty miles below Pittsburgh—together with a large stock of Rags, &c. now on hand. The Mill contains two engines, vats, and stuff chests—five screws and presses, with every other convenience for carrying on the paper making business to advantage. The stream is one among the best in the western country for permanency, and the situation of the mill is not exceeded by that of any similar establishment for doing a profitable business.

The subscribers having become advanced in years, and unable to bestow the requisite attention, is the only inducement for thus offering to dispose of it. Any further information may be obtained by application to either of the subscribers.

IRON-WORKS,

Sites for Forges, Mills, Factories, &c.

FOR SALE.

THE subscriber, desirous of repose from the active pursuits in which he has been long engaged, proposes to sell on a liberal credit, the following property viz: 2 blast Furnaces, on the Iron ore fork of Barton's creek in Dickson county, 40 miles west of Nashville, and 10 south of Cumberland river, with about 12,000 acres of well-timbered land, one half of which is fit for cultivation, with fine streams and several springs of excellent water. The ore bank from which these Furnaces are supplied, is about half a mile from each, the ground descending to the furnace and is not inferior to any in this, or perhaps any other country: the ore is believed to be inexhaustible, and is easily raised from the bank.—Also a five fire Forge on Jones's creek, about 8 miles from the Furnace, having the advantage of most of the modern improvements. Also, a good site for a forge on the same creek, one mile above this establishment. On each of the last named places is a grist mill. Also, a very good site for a Forge on main Turnbull creek, which affords water at all seasons for all kinds of machinery.—Also, a site for a furnace on the Beaverdam fork of Turnbull creek, with a good ore bank about 1 mile distant. (This ore bank ranks in quality with the Salisbury ore, on trial of the Springfield armory.) The surrounding country is thin land, handsomely timbered, and well watered with springs—The above sites are also situated in Dickson county, about 25 miles from Nashville, and 8 from the narrows of Harpeth. There is attached to them about 1000 acres of well timbered land. Also, 3 other interesting sites, on Mill creek, a branch of Piny river, in Hickman county, about 6 miles from Duck river, with an inexhaustible bank of ore, and from 9 to 10,000 acres of land of inferior quality, but well timbered.—Also the justly celebrated site of the Narrows of Harpeth. This site I am constrained to believe combines more power and safety than any other on the western waters, and is better calculated for the preparation of steam engine materials, the making of arms, or building of steam boats, than any other within my knowledge in the United States.

The Narrows of Harpeth embrace a bend in that river of about 6 miles in its circuit, and coming within the distance of 60 yards at the conclusion of its circle: a tunnel has been excavated through the point, a distance of 96 yards, which is 15 feet wide, and 6 feet high by means of which a natural fall of water is gained, of near 19 feet. The river is here bottomed on a smooth sound rock, on one side is a solid bed of rocks of 250 feet in height, on the other the bank is of stiff blue clay 22 feet high, and would admit the raising of a dam 12 feet high with perfect safety, thereby affording a head and fall of 30 feet of water. The river Harpeth is navigable to this point, in keel boats from 3 to 6 months in the year.—The power and advantages of this site are almost incalculable, and hold forth the strongest inducements to men of capital and enterprize, not only in the Manufacture of Iron and Iron implements, but also to the Manufacturer of Cotton and Wool. This site is about 20 miles from Nashville, and 6 from Cumberland river.

In addition to the above, the subscriber also offers for sale on the same terms, 3000 acres of Land in White's bend, from 6 to 12 miles below Nashville, on the margin of Cumberland river, well watered with numerous springs—Also 800 acres opposite the Harpeth Island, 22 miles below Nashville, 400 of which is low ground of first quality, with good springs on the upland—Also 657 acres including the mouth of Harpeth, with a handsome improvement thereon, with 100 acres of cleared land, and first-rate springs. Also, 640 acres of broken land, including what is called Weakley's ferry—Also, 400 acres, including Hamilton's ferry, 300 of which is of superior quality, with 80 acres cleared and a good spring—Also, 2000 acres including Well's ferry, on half bottom lands, no improvements—All of which lie on the margin of Cumberland river.—Also, 640 acres on the east fork of Yellow creek, of superior quality, 4 miles from the river.

Should these works and sites not be disposed of before the 1st of March, I will then receive proposals of partnership, for improving and carrying on the unimproved sites.

The subscriber will also hire out by the year, a set of furnace hands, well skilled in all the different branches of the business; also a considerable number of forge hands.

Letters addressed to me on the above subject at Nashville, will be promptly attended to.

$500 Reward, in Specie.

RANAWAY from the subscriber, living six miles from Louisville, Jefferson county, Ky. on the 17th day of April last, a negro man named BEN; 27 or 28 years old; about 5 feet 8 or 10 inches high; of a tolerably light color, approaching that of an ordinary mulatto; but his hair is short and curly, like that of negroes generally. He is a little round or stoop shouldered, and stout made; has a short, thick hand, and I think he is left handed; his eyes are a little inclined to be gray, not quite as black as negroes' eyes generally; he has rather a sly, down look when accused with his misconduct; has rather a soft, pleasant speech: he pretends to be a methodist by profession, but he may give that up, as I think he does it to cloak his badness: he may change his name, or he may live under the protection of some white man. I will pay Five Hundred Dollars in Specie for the delivery of Ben, to me, at my farm

IRON-WORKS,

Sites for Forges, Mills, Factories, &c.

FOR SALE.

THE subscriber, desirous of repose from the active pursuits in which he has been long engaged, proposes to sell on a liberal credit, the following property viz: 2 blast Furnaces, on the Iron ore fork of Barton's creek in Dickson county, 40 miles west of Nashville, and 10 south of Cumberland river, with about 12,000 acres of well-timbered land, one half of which is fit for cultivation, with fine streams and several springs of excellent water. The ore bank from which these Furnaces are supplied, is about half a mile from each, the ground descending to the furnace and is not inferior to any in this, or perhaps any other country: the ore is believed to be inexhaustible, and is easily raised from the bank.—Also a five fire Forge on Jones's creek, about 8 miles from the Furnace, having the advantage of most of the modern improvements. Also, a good site for a forge on the same creek, one mile above this establishment. On each of the last named places is a grist mill. Also, a very good site for a forge on main Turnbull creek, which affords water at all seasons for all kinds of machinery.—Also, a site for a furnace on the Beaverdam fork of Turnbull creek, with a good ore bank about 1 mile distant. (This ore bank ranks in quality with the Salisbury ore, on trial of the Springfield armory.) The surrounding country is thin land, handsomely timbered, and well watered with springs—The above sites are also situated in Dickson county, about 25 miles from Nashville, and 8 from the narrows of Harpeth. There is attached to them about 1000 acres of well timbered land. Also, 3 other interesting sites, on Mill creek, a branch of Piny river, in Hickman county, about 6 miles from Duck river, with an inexhaustible bank of ore, and from 9 to 10,000 acres of land of inferior quality, but well timbered.—Also the justly celebrated site of the Narrows of Harpeth. This site I am constrained to believe combines more power and safety than any other on the western waters, and is better calculated for the preparation of steam engine materials, the making of arms, or building of steam boats, than any other within my knowledge in the United States.

The Narrows of Harpeth embrace a bend in that river of about 6 miles in its circuit, and coming within the distance of 60 yards at the conclusion of its circle: a tunnel has been excavated through the point, a distance of 96 yards, which is 15 feet wide, and 6 feet high by means of which a natural fall of water is gained, of near 19 feet. The river is here bottomed on a smooth sound rock, on one side is a solid bed of rocks of 250 feet in height, on the other the bank is of stiff blue clay 22 feet high, and would admit the raising of a dam 12 feet high with perfect safety, thereby affording a head and fall of 30 feet of water. The river Harpeth is navigable to this point, in keel boats from 3 to 6 months in the year.—The power and advantages of this site are almost incalculable, and hold forth the strongest inducements to men of capital and enterprize, not only in the Manufacture of Iron and Iron implements, but also to the Manufacturer of Cotton and Wool. This site is about 20 miles from Nashville, and 6 from Cumberland river.

In addition to the above, the subscriber also offers for sale on the same terms, 3000 acres of Land in White's bend, from 6 to 12 miles below Nashville, on the margin of Cumberland river, well watered with numerous springs—Also 800 acres opposite the Harpeth Island, 22 miles below Nashville, 400 of which is low ground of first quality, with good springs on the upland—Also 657 acres including the mouth of Harpeth, with a handsome improvement thereon, with 100 acres of cleared land, and first-rate springs. Also, 640 acres of broken land, including what is called Weakley's ferry—Also, 400 acres, including Hamliton's ferry, 300 of which is of superior quality, with 80 acres cleared and a good spring—Also, 2000 acres including Well's ferry, on half bottom lands, no improvements—All of which lie on the margin of Cumberland river.—Also, 640 acres on the east fork of Yellow creek, of superior quality, 4 miles from the river.

Should these works and sites not be disposed of before the 1st of March, I will then receive proposals of partnership, for improving and carrying on the unimproved sites.

The subscriber will also hire out by the year, a set of furnace hands, well skilled in all the different branches of the business; also a considerable number of forge hands.

Letters addressed to me on the above subject at Nashville, will be promptly attended to.

Commodore Stewart's Trial.—In this case many witnesses have been examined, but their testimony is not to be published until the remaining evidence shall have been heard.

For the Gazette.

It is but sheer justice to Messrs. James Adams, William Courtney, and Thomas Foster, the commissioners for the improvement of the Ohio river, to notice the promptness with which they have seized every opportunity afforded by low water for the prosecution of their work. The indefatigable industry and perseverence with which they devoted themselves to this business, during the short time that it was practicable, deserve all praise.—Though it was possible to labor but a few weeks, they have made very great improvements. At White's Ripple, which has hitherto been a trap for steam boats, their labors were very great; they erected at this point an immense dam of rocks and stones, which we are assured by the most competent judges, will remove all difficulty at this place. DEMOCRATIC REPUBLICAN MEETING.

At a numerous meeting of the Democratic Republicans of this city held at the house of Geo. Beale, on 29th inst. Col. Wm. Anderson was called to the chair, and Messrs. Lewis Peterson and A. S. T. Mountain, appointed Secretaries. After some preliminary remarks from the chair, the following resolution was offered by Mr. Mountain and adopted with but one dissenting voice.

Resolved, That this meeting highly approve of the nomination of the Hon. ABNER LACOCK as a candidate for Congress, by our fellow citizens of Beaver county; and most earnestly recommend him to the firm support of the freemen of this District, as a gentleman in every way qualified to represent them in the councils of the nation, with talent, integrity and ability.

Whereas, it has become clearly manifest to every one that the opening of a communication between the Eastern and Western waters of this state, is essentially necessary to secure to her the interest which she now has in the carrying trade and commerce of the Union, and will greatly increase her wealth and resources, and must especially promote the interest and improve the advantages of this district:

And, as the proceedings of the late canal Convention have rendered it certain that the discussion of this subject will occupy a great portion of the attention of our next Legislature, and that those opposed to the success of the measure, from local interest or mistaken views, will certainly bring forward their strongest forces in the opposition:

Therefore, Resolved, That it is especially requisite that this District should be ably represented in the next Legislature, and that this city, from the great interest which she has in the completion of the proposed canal, from her importance in the commonwealth, is justly entitled to at least one Representative from the city in the Assembly.

Resolved, That the members of this meeting will support, by all honorable means, and earnestly recommend to the support of the Electors of this District a candidate for the Assembly, JOSEPH PATTERSON, Esq. of this city, having entire confidence in his industry, talent, and integrity, and believing that he is every way well qualified to advocate our cause and promote the public good. And it is with the greater satisfaction we sustain his claims to our suffrage, when we consider that he has never taken any part in the political contests of the day; and has already distinguished himself as our most efficient advocate in the canal convention.

Resolved, That a general committee of five be appointed, to use every effort to carry into effect the object of this meeting, and to prepare an address on the subject to the Electors of this District.

Resolved, That the proceedings of this meeting be signed by the Chairman and Secretaries, and published in all the newspapers of this City and of Butler County.

The following Gentlemen were selected to compose the Committee mentioned in the third Resolution: A. S. T. Mountain, C. Curtis, Wm. Bell, jun. Thomas Liggett and S. Stoner.

From the Mercury.

[Communicated for the Mercury, by a correspondent in an adjoining county.]

Mr. Snowden,—That the present is an important crisis for Pennsylvania, no man can doubt. The lamentable depression of our circumstances, contrasted with the activity and vigor of our neighbor, New-York, speaks volumes of reproach against our supineness and want of public spirit. The question to be decided, is whether we will tamely and indolently permit our commercial prosperity to be annihilated by the successful enterprise of our rival states on each side; or whether we will arise in our strength, and assert the rank which Pennsylvania, by her local situation, her resources, and population, is entitled to hold. We have greater natural advantages than any other state in the union: shall we avail ourselves of them, by an extensive and well arranged system of internal improvement? But I mean to offer no argument on this subject. I conceive that the late convention at Harrisburgh has expressed the wishes of the people very distinctly. It remains, however, to carry their views into effect by a wise and energetic legislation. At the next session of our legislature, the fate of Pennsylvania will be decided. Weak, wavering, or inefficient measures will seal our ruin: bold, spirited exertions will ensure our future prosperity. When so much depends upon our representatives, ought we not to be careful in the selection of them? So important, indeed, do I consider the measures that will be agitated, that I am disposed, for my own part, to make the disposition and capacity of candidates to forward the projected canal communications, as the test of qualification. I will not vote for any man who will not favor and further the great work contemplated. Every other consideration at present is minor, and ought to yield. Let us call into service gentlemen of public spirit, zeal and ability: who feel an ardor and devotedness to the object, and who possess a knowledge on the subject that will make them useful.

It is from these views that I am induced to suggest to the electors of your county the name of Joseph Patterson, Esq. as a candidate for the next legislature. Without the least disposition to interfere with or influence the unbiassed right of suffrage of our citizens, I cannot forbear expressing the belief that the gentleman I have mentioned is eminently calculated to promote their views and advance the interests of the state at this time.—I had the honor to sit as a member of the late convention at Harrisburgh, and on that occasion was much impressed, not only with the zeal and earnestness which he manifested in the cause of internal improvement, but also with the extent of his information on every point connected with the subject. The public I presume are well acquainted with his character and general qualifications, but the peculiar turn of mind and [illegible] which in my opinion particularly fit him for legislating in reference to the great and momentous interests of the state at this crisis, are perhaps not so well known. I hope my suggesting them will not be considered obtrusive or impertinent; my only reason for presenting his name is a real regard for the public welfare, which I believe to depend upon decisive measures for the improvement of the state by canals or railways.

From the Liverpool Mercury.

The real Author of Junius's Letters at length discovered.—An interesting work, which has just made its appearance, will, if we are not mistaken, excite an unusual sensation in the literary and political circles, not only of England, but of Europe at large; as it bids fair to solve the hitherto impenetrable mystery in which the identity of a justly celebrated writer has been so long involved; a mystery which we will, however, venture to add, without disparagement to the author, has not a little enhanced the interest and reputation of the letters of Junius. The work to which we now call the attention of our readers, is entitled "a Critical Inquiry, regarding the real author of the letters of Junius, proving them to have been written by lord Viscount Sackville." The individual to whom the literary world is indebted for this interesting volume is Mr. George Coventry, to whom we take this opportunity to return our acknowledgments for the copy now before us. Our other occupations have not yet afforded us leisure for that careful perusal and examination of Mr. Coventry's work which would alone justify us in pronouncing a decided and irrevocable judgment on the subject; but we have most assuredly seen enough to convince us that the circumstantial evidence here collected together is much more clear and irresistible than any which has been hitherto adduced to show that Sir Philip Francis or any other individual to whom the letters of Junius have been ascribed, was really the author. Through the medium of the next Kaleidoscope we purpose to resume the subject and lay before our readers an abridgment of a variety of collateral circumstances which have produced upon our minds the conviction that lord George Sackville was the "great unknown" of the political world. If we have lent too ready an ear to the reasoning of Mr. Coventry, we are prepared to show that the presumption in favor of lord George Sackville being the writer of the letters of Junius is infinitely stronger than that upon which Sir Walter Scott is so confidently pronounced to be the author of Waverley and what are termed the Scottish Novels.

Our limits, and the numerous claims to our editorial notice, will not permit us to dilate upon this subject at present; we must, therefore, confine ourselves to one or two points, which bear strongly upon the question at issue, and which we shall enlarge upon when we resume our comments upon the work under consideration. It is obvious that whoever Junius was, he must have been one who wrote under the most poignant feelings of disappointed ambition, wounded pride, or a lively sense of deep and unmerited injuries. No man living was so likely to harbor these impressions as lord Viscount Sackville. As successor to the duke of Marlborough, he had the chief command of the British forces on the continent, where a circumstance occurred, which was sufficient to arouse and to account for that tone of deep rancor and cutting sarcasm by which the letters of Junius are characterised. He had been, as he no doubt conceived, most unjustly reproached; brought to a court martial, and dismissed the service for imputed disobedience of order at the battle of Mindin. His enemies even accused him of cowardice; and his alleged shy conduct on the field became the subject of vulgar caricature. Prince Ferdinand, who had the command of the allied continental troops, and under whom lord George Sackville was ordered by the British government to act, declared that he regretted "that the marquis of Granby had not the command of the British cavalry on the occasion adverted to;" which sarcasm may serve to account for lord George's subsequent feeling towards the marquis. The most important witnesses on this trial, says Mr. Coventry, "were the marquis of Granby, lieut. col. Fitzroy, brother to the duke of Grafton, and lieut. Wm. Augustus Pitt; and these families stand pre-eminent in Junius's letters." "In fine, observes the writer a little further on, not one connected with lord George's trial escaped retaliation and personal censure afterwards." We shall lay no stress upon the motives for the concealment of Junius; because such motives must have operated more or less upon every writer of similar daring. We shall merely further state, that all the circumstantial evidence which Mr. Coventry converges to a focus, to bear him out in his conclusion, is as strong as that we may have adduced to account for the motives which prompted the celebrated letters of Junius; but we must not conclude without observing that the author of the book before us has proved clearly that Sir Philip Francis could not have been Junius, because this same Junius, whoever he was, "states a circumstance which he saw with his own eyes before Sir Philip Francis was born."

FROM ENGLAND.

By the ship Courier, Capt. Wallace which arrived here last evening from Liverpool, we have received papers to the 23d ult. but they are not very interesting.

Journals in the Spanish language, printed in London, are smuggled into Spain, and circulated clandestinely throughout the country.

On the 2d July, a violent earthquake was felt at Algiers, which produced no other mischief than great alarm. At some distance its effects were more fatal. The town of Belida has been destroyed, and half of its inhabitants perished.

Greece.—It is stated on authority of letters from Zante, that the Pacha of Egypt had struck his flag at Nauarino, and marched with all his forces towards the Gulf of Lepanto. It was reported that he was short of supplies, on account of the capture of vessels with stores by the Greek cruisers.

The French papers also state, on the authority of a letter received by an eminent banking house in Paris from Leghorn, that the Christians had gained a decisive victory in Eastern Greece.

There are numerous accounts of the bravery of the Greeks in their defence of Navarino, though finally unsuccessful. One paper notices the death, in the battle, of the zealous and valiant Count Santa Rosa.

It is our painful duty to announce the death of FREDERICK BATES, Esq. Governor of the state of Missouri: we have not heard the particulars, except that his disease was violent, and his death sudden and unexpected. Mr. Bates had been for many years a citizen of this state. He enjoyed the confidence of all who knew him; and there are few whose course in public and in private life has been so altogether blameless. St. Louis Inquirer, Aug. 6.

The Charleston Mercury, of August 17th, is shrouded in mourning on account of the death of Charles Cotesworth Pinckney. The Courier announces his death in the following terms

"Another distinguished HERO of the Revolution—a most firm and enlightened Statesman, a PATRIOT beyond suspicion and without reproach—the model, throughout his life, whether public or private, of a pure and virtuous citizen and magistrate—the wise associate of the ancestors of our liberty, the bright and immortal example of all ingenious youth, who would identify their names with their country's honor and happiness CHARLES COTESWORTH PINCKNEY, is no more. Our feelings on this melancholy event, restrain us from speaking further."

The Western University.

The Classes in the University will be re-opened on Monday, the 5th day of September.

IT is intended to join part of an English education with the Latin language in the Grammar school; an excellent tutor being procured to assist Dr. Black in this department

It may be stated to the young gentlemen of this city, that attendance on any of the departments of Logic and Moral Philosophy, under the Rev. Mr. Swift; or of Belles Lettres or Composition, under the Rev. Mr. Hopkins; or of Chemistry, Mathematics, or Natural Philosophy, under the Principal, can be obtained separately, at a very moderate expense.

Since the Independence of South-America and Mexico opens vast commercial prospects to the United States, it is supposed that there might be a great advantage in having access to learn the Spanish language. If a class could be formed for this and the French, the Rev. Mr. M'Guire will commence immediately to teach these languages.

A PETITION was presented from Charles Johnston, of Wilkins township, Allegheny county, praying the Board, for the reasons therein stated, that a patent, issued the 31st of December, 1811, to Jacob Shetler, (recorded in Patent Book H. The Board, after fully considering the prayer of the petitioner, and the evidence accompanying it, direct that the said Jacob Shetler be cited to appear before the Board of Property, on the first Monday of December, 1825, to show cause why the said patent should not be declared void, as having been obtained by surprise, and through misrepresentation; and that this minute be published in at least one newspaper published in Allegheny county, for three successive weeks, or personal notice be served on the said Jacob Shetler.

I do certify that the above is a true copy of the minute of the Board of Property, entered in minute book No. 9, page 29, remaining in the office of the Secretary of the Land Office of Pennsylvania.

Commodore Stewart's Trial.—In this case many witnesses have been examined, but their testimony is not to be published until the remaining evidence shall have been heard.

For the Gazette.

It is but sheer justice to Messrs. James Adams, William Courtney, and Thomas Foster, the commissioners for the improvement of the Ohio river, to notice the promptness with which they have seized every opportunity afforded by low water for the prosecution of their work. The indefatigable industry and perseverence with which they devoted themselves to this business, during the short time that it was practicable, deserve all praise.—Though it was possible to labor but a few weeks, they have made very great improvements. At White's Ripple, which has hitherto been a trap for steam boats, their labors were very great; they erected at this point an immense dam of rocks and stones, which we are assured by the most competent judges, will remove all difficulty at this place. DEMOCRATIC REPUBLICAN MEETING.

At a numerous meeting of the Democratic Republicans of this city held at the house of Geo. Beale, on 29th inst. Col. Wm. Anderson was called to the chair, and Messrs. Lewis Peterson and A. S. T. Mountain, appointed Secretaries. After some preliminary remarks from the chair, the following resolution was offered by Mr. Mountain and adopted with but one dissenting voice.

Resolved, That this meeting highly approve of the nomination of the Hon. ABNER LACOCK as a candidate for Congress, by our fellow citizens of Beaver county; and most earnestly recommend him to the firm support of the freemen of this District, as a gentleman in every way qualified to represent them in the councils of the nation, with talent, integrity and ability.

Whereas, it has become clearly manifest to every one that the opening of a communication between the Eastern and Western waters of this state, is essentially necessary to secure to her the interest which she now has in the carrying trade and commerce of the Union, and will greatly increase her wealth and resources, and must especially promote the interest and improve the advantages of this district:

And, as the proceedings of the late canal Convention have rendered it certain that the discussion of this subject will occupy a great portion of the attention of our next Legislature, and that those opposed to the success of the measure, from local interest or mistaken views, will certainly bring forward their strongest forces in the opposition:

Therefore, Resolved, That it is especially requisite that this District should be ably represented in the next Legislature, and that this city, from the great interest which she has in the completion of the proposed canal, from her importance in the commonwealth, is justly entitled to at least one Representative from the city in the Assembly.

Resolved, That the members of this meeting will support, by all honorable means, and earnestly recommend to the support of the Electors of this District as a candidate for the Assembly, JOSEPH PATTERSON, Esq. of this city, having entire confidence in his industry, talent, and integrity, and believing that he is every way well qualified to advocate our cause and promote the public good. And it is with the greater satisfaction we sustain his claims to our suffrage, when we consider that he has never taken any part in the political contests of the day; and has recently distinguished himself as our most efficient advocate in the canal convention.

Resolved, That a general committee of five be appointed, whose every effort to carry into effect the object of this meeting, and to prepare an address on the subject to the Electors of this District.

Resolved, That the proceedings of this meeting be signed by the Chairman and Secretaries, and published in all the newspapers of this City and of Butler County.

The following Gentlemen were selected to compose the Committee mentioned in the third Resolution: A. S. T. Mountain, C. Curtis, Wm. Bell, jun. Thomas Liggett and S. Stoner.

Signed,

WILLIAM ANDERSON, Chairman.

From the Mercury.

Communicated for the Mercury, by a correspondent in an adjoining county.

Mr. Snowden,—That the present is an important crisis for Pennsylvania, no man can doubt. The lamentable depression of our circumstances, contrasted with the activity and vigor of our neighbor, New-York, speaks volumes of reproach against our supineness and want of public spirit. The question to be decided, is whether we will tamely and indolently permit our commercial prosperity to be annihilated by the successful enterprise of our rival states on each side; or whether we will arise in our strength, and assert the rank which Pennsylvania, by her local situation, her resources, and population, is entitled to hold. We have greater natural advantages than any other state in the union: shall we avail ourselves of them, by an extensive and well arranged system of internal improvement? But I mean to offer no argument on this subject. I conceive that the late convention at Harrisburgh has expressed the wishes of the people very distinctly. It remains, however, to carry their views into effect by a wise and energetic legislation. At the next session of our legislature, the fate of Pennsylvania will be decided. Weak, wavering, or inefficient measures will seal our ruin; bold, spirited exertions will ensure our future prosperity. Which so much depends upon our representatives, ought we not to be careful in the selection of them? So important, indeed, do I consider the measures that will be agitated, that I am disposed, for my own part, to make the disposition and capacity of candidates to forward the projected canal communications, as the test of qualification. I will not vote for any man who will not favor and further the great work contemplated. Every other consideration at present is minor, and ought to yield. Let us call into service gentlemen of public spirit, zeal and ability; who feel an ardor and devotedness to the object, and who possess a knowledge on the subject that will make them useful.

It is from these views that I am induced to suggest to the electors of your county the name of Joseph Patterson, Esq. as a candidate for the next Legislature. Without the least disposition to interfere with or influence the unbiassed right of suffrage of our citizens, I cannot forbear expressing the belief that the gentleman I have mentioned is eminently calculated to promote their views and advance the interests of the state at this time.—I had the honor to sit as a member of the late convention at Harrisburgh, and on that occasion was much impressed, not only with the zeal and earnestness which he manifested in the cause of internal improvement, but also with the extent of his information on every point connected with the subject. The public I presume are well acquainted with his character and general qualifications, but the peculiar turn of mind and habits of study, which in my opinion particularly fit him for legislating in reference to the great and momentous interests of the state at this crisis, are perhaps not so well known. I hope my suggesting them will not be considered obtrusive or impertinent: my only reason for presenting his name is a real regard for the public welfare, which I believe to depend upon decisive measures for the improvement of the state by canals or railways.

From the Liverpool Mercury.

The real Author of Junius's Letters at length discovered.—An interesting work, which has just made its appearance, will, if we are not mistaken, excite an unusual sensation in the literary and political circles, not only of England, but of Europe at large; as it bids fair to solve the hitherto impenetrable mystery in which the identity of a justly celebrated writer has been so long involved; a mystery which we will, however, venture to add, without disparagement to the author, has not a little enhanced the interest and reputation of the letters of Junius. The work to which we now call the attention of our readers, is entitled "a Critical Inquiry, regarding the real author of the letters of Junius, proving them to have been written by lord Viscount Sackville." The individual to whom the literary world is indebted for this interesting volume is Mr. George Coventry, to whom we take this opportunity to return our acknowledgments for the copy now before us. Our other occupations have not yet afforded us leisure for that careful perusal and examination of Mr. Coventry's work which would alone justify us in pronouncing a decided and irrevocable judgment on the subject; but we have most assuredly seen enough to convince us that the circumstantial evidence here collected together is much more clear and irresistible than any which has been hitherto adduced to show that Sir Philip Francis or any other individual to whom the letters of Junius have been ascribed, was really the author. Through the medium of the next Kaleidoscope we purpose to resume the subject and lay before our readers an abridgment of a variety of collateral circumstances which have produced upon our minds the conviction that lord George Sackville was the "great unknown" of the political world. If we have lent too ready an ear to the reasoning of Mr. Coventry, we are prepared to show that the presumption in favor of lord George Sackville being the writer of the letters of Junius is infinitely stronger than that upon which Sir Walter Scott is so confidently pronounced to be the author of Waverley and what are termed the Scottish Novels.

Our limits, and the numerous claims to our editorial notice, will not permit us to dilate upon this subject at present; we must, therefore, confine ourselves to one or two points, which bear strongly upon the question at issue, and which we shall enlarge upon when we resume our comments upon the work under consideration. It is obvious that whoever Junius was, he must have been one who wrote under the most poignant feelings of disappointed ambition, wounded pride, or a lively sense of deep and unmerited injuries. No man living was so likely to harbor these impressions as lord Viscount Sackville. As successor to the duke of Marlborough, he had the chief command of the British forces on the continent, where a circumstance occurred, which was sufficient to arouse and to account for that tone of deep rancor and cutting sarcasm by which the letters of Junius are characterised. He had been, as he no doubt conceived, most unjustly reproached; brought to a court martial, and dismissed the service for imputed disobedience of order at the battle of Minden. His enemies even accused him of cowardice; and his alleged shy conduct on the field became the subject of vulgar caricature. Prince Ferdinand, who had the command of the allied continental troops, and under whom lord George Sackville was ordered by the British government to act, declared that he regretted "that the marquis of Granby had not the command of the British cavalry on the occasion adverted to;" with sarcasm may serve to account for lord George's subsequent feeling towards the marquis. The most important witnesses in this trial, says Mr. Coventry, "were the marquis of Granby, lieut. col. Fitzroy, brother to the duke of Grafton, and lieut. Wm. Augustus Pitt; and these family stand pre-eminent in Junius's letters." "In fine, observes the writer a little further on, not one connected with lord George's trial escaped retaliation and personal censure afterwards." We shall lay no stress upon the motives for the concealment of Junius; because such motives must have operated more or less upon every writer of similar daring. We shall merely further state, that all the circumstantial evidence which Mr. Coventry converges to a focus, to bear him out in his conclusion, is as strong as that we may have adduced to account for the motives which prompted the celebrated letters of Junius; but we must not conclude without observing that the author of the book before us has proved clearly that Sir Philip Francis could not have been Junius, because this same Junius, whoever he was, "states a circumstance which he saw with his own eyes before Sir Philip Francis was born."

FROM ENGLAND.

By the ship Courier, Capt. Wallace which arrived here last evening from Liverpool, we have received papers to the 23d ult. but they are not very interesting.

Journals in the Spanish language, printed in London, are smuggled into Spain, and circulated clandestinely throughout the country.

On the 2d July, a violent earthquake was felt at Algiers, which produced no other mischief than great alarm. At some distance its effects were more fatal. The town of Belida has been destroyed, and half of its inhabitants perished.

Greece.—It is stated on authority of letters from Zante, that the Pacha of Egypt had struck his flag at Nauarino, and marched with all his forces towards the Gulf of Lepanto. It was reported that he was short of supplies, on account of the capture of vessels with stores by the Greek cruisers.

The French papers also state, on the authority of a letter received by an eminent banking house in Paris from Leghorn, that the Christians had gained a decisive victory in Eastern Greece.

There are numerous accounts of the bravery of the Greeks in their defence of Navarino, though finally unsuccessful. One paper notices the death, in the battle, of the zealous and valiant Count Santa Rosa.

He enjoyed the confidence of all who knew him; and there are few whose course in public and in private life has been so altogether blameless. St. Louis Inquirer, Aug. 6.

The Charleston Mercury, of August 17th, is shrouded in mourning on account of the death of Charles Cotesworth Pinckney. The Courier announces his death in the following terms

"Another distinguished Hero of the Revolution—a most firm and enlightened Statesman, a Patriot beyond suspicion and without reproach—the model, throughout his life, whether public or private, of a pure and virtuous citizen and magistrate—the wise associate of the ancestors of our liberty, the bright and immortal example of all ingenious youth, who would identify their names with their country's honor and happiness CHARLES COTESWORTH PINCKNEY, is no more. Our feelings on this melancholy event, restrain us from speaking further"

"Mr. Cranch, of the Engineer Department, was drowned by the boat sinking on Lake Erie, last Saturday."

The Western University.

The Classes in the University will be re-opened on Monday, the 5th day of September.

It is intended to join part of an English education with the Latin language in the Grammar school; an excellent tutor being procured to assist Dr. Black in this department

It may be stated to the young gentlemen of this city, that attendance on any of the departments of Logic and Moral Philosophy, under the Rev. Mr. Swift; or of Belles Lettres or Composition, under the Rev. Mr. Hopkins; or of Chemistry, Mathematics, or Natural Philosophy, under the Principal, can be obtained separately, at a very moderate expense.

Since the Independence of South-America and Mexico opens vast commercial prospects to the United States, it is supposed that there might be a great advantage in having access to learn the Spanish language. If a class could be formed for this and the French, the Rev. Mr. M'Guire will commence immediately to teach these languages.

IRON-WORKS,

Sites for Forges, Mills, Factories, &c.

FOR SALE.

THE subscriber, desirous of repose from the active pursuits in which he has been long engaged, proposes to sell on a liberal credit, the following property viz: 2 blast Furnaces, on the iron-ore fork of Barton's creek in Dickson county, 40 miles west of Nashville, and 10 south of Cumberland river, with about 12,000 acres of well-timbered land, one half of which is fit for cultivation, with fine streams and several springs of excellent water. The ore bank from which these Furnaces are supplied, is about half a mile from each, the ground descending to the furnace and is not inferior to any in this, or perhaps any other country: the ore is believed to be inexhaustible, and is easily raised from the bank.—Also a five fire Forge on Jones's creek, about 8 miles from the Furnace, having the advantage of most of the modern improvements. Also, a good site for a forge on the same creek, one mile above this establishment. On each of the last named places is a grist mill. Also, a very good site for a forge on main Turnbull creek, which affords water at all seasons for all kinds of machinery.—Also, a site for a furnace on the Beaverdam fork of Turnbull creek, with a good ore bank about 1 mile distant. (This ore bank ranks in quality with the Salisbury ore, on trial of the Springfield armory.) The surrounding country is thin land, handsomely timbered, and well watered with springs—The above sites are also situated in Dickson county, about 25 miles from Nashville, and 8 from the narrows of Harpeth. There is attached to them about 1000 acres of well timbered land. Also, 3 other interesting sites, on Mill creek, a branch of Piny river, in Hickman county, about 6 miles from Duck river, with an inexhaustible bank of ore, and from 9 to 10,000 acres of land of inferior quality, but well timbered.—Also the justly celebrated site of the Narrows of Harpeth. This site I am constrained to believe combines more power and safety than any other on the western waters, and is better calculated for the preparation of steam engine materials, the making of arms, or building of steam boats, than any other within my knowledge in the United States

The Narrows of Harpeth embrace a bend in that river of about 6 miles in its circuit, and coming within the distance of 60 yards at the conclusion of its circle: a tunnel has been excavated through the point, a distance of 96 yards, which is 15 feet wide, and 6 feet high by means of which a natural fall of water is gained, of near 19 feet. The river is here bottomed on a smooth sound rock, on one side is a solid bed of rocks of 250 feet in height, on the other the bank is of stiff blue clay 22 feet high, and would admit the raising of a dam 12 feet high with perfect safety, thereby affording a head and fall of 30 feet of water. The river Harpeth is navigable to this point in keel boats from 5 to 6 months in the year.—The power and advantages of this site are almost incalculable, and hold forth the strongest inducements to men of capital and enterprize, not only in the Manufacture of Iron and Iron implements, but also to the Manufacturer of Cotton and Wool. This site is about 20 miles from Nashville, and 6 from Cumberland river.

In addition to the above, the subscriber also offers for sale on the same terms, 3000 acres of Laudin White's bend, from 5 to 12 miles below Nashville, on the margin of Cumberland river, well watered with numerous springs—Also 800 acres opposite the Harpeth Island, 22 miles below Nashville, 400 of which is low ground of first quality, with good springs on the upland—Also 657 acres including the mouth of Harpeth, with a handsome improvement thereon, with 100 acres of cleared land, and first-rate springs. Also, 640 acres of broken land, including what is called Weakley's ferry—Also, 400 acres, including Hamliton's ferry, 300 of which is of superior quality, with 80 acres cleared and a good spring—Also, 2000 acres including Well's ferry, on half bottom lands, no improvements—All of which lie on the margin of Cumberland river.—Also, 640 acres on the east fork of Yellow creek, of superior quality, 4 miles from the river.

Should these works and sites not be disposed of before the 1st of March, I will then receive proposals of partnership, for improving and carrying on the unimproved sites.

The subscriber will also hire out by the year, a set of furnace hands, well skilled in all the different branches of the business, also a considerable number of forge hands.

Letters addressed to me on the above subject at Nashville, will be promptly attended to.

IRON-WORKS,

Sites for Forges, Mills, Factories, &c.

FOR SALE.

THE subscriber, desirous of repose from the active pursuits in which he has been long engaged, proposes to sell on a liberal credit, the following property viz: 2 blast Furnaces, on the Iron-ore fork of Barton's creek in Dickson county, 40 miles west of Nashville, and 10 south of Cumberland river, with about 12,000 acres of well-timbered land, one half of which is fit for cultivation, with fine streams and several springs of excellent water. The ore bank from which these Furnaces are supplied, is about half a mile from each, the ground descending to the furnace and is not inferior to any in this, or perhaps any other country: the ore is believed to be inexhaustible, and is easily raised from the bank.—Also a five fire Forge on Jones's creek, about 8 miles from the Furnace, having the advantage of most of the modern improvements. Also, a good site for a forge on the same creek, one mile above this establishment. On each of the last named places is a grist mill. Also, a very good site for a forge on main Turnbull creek, which affords water at all seasons for all kinds of machinery.—Also, a site for a furnace on the Beaverdam fork of Turnbull creek, with a good ore bank about 1 mile distant. (This ore bank ranks in quality with the Salisbury ore, on trial of the Springfield armory.) The surrounding country is thin land, handsomely timbered, and well watered with springs—The above sites are also situated in Dickson county, about 25 miles from Nashville, and 8 from the narrows of Harpeth. There is attached to them about 1000 acres of well timbered land. Also, 3 other interesting sites, on Mill creek, a branch of Piny river, in Hickman county, about 6 miles from Duck river, with an inexhaustible bank of ore, and from 9 to 10,000 acres of land of inferior quality, but well timbered.—Also the justly celebrated site of the Narrows of Harpeth. This site I am constrained to believe combines more power and safety than any other on the western waters, and is better calculated for the preparation of steam engine materials, the making of arms, or building of steam boats, than any other within my knowledge in the United States

The Narrows of Harpeth embrace a bend in that river of about 6 miles in its circuit, and coming within the distance of 60 yards at the conclusion of its circle: a tunnel has been excavated through the point, a distance of 96 yards, which is 15 feet wide, and 6 feet high by means of which a natural fall of water is gained, of near 19 feet. The river is here bottomed on a smooth sound rock, on one side is a solid bed of rocks of 250 feet in height, on the other the bank is of stiff blue clay 22 feet high, and would admit the raising of a dam 12 feet high with perfect safety, thereby affording a head and fall of 30 feet of water. The river Harpeth is navigable to this point in keel boats from 5 to 6 months in the year.—The power and advantages of this site are almost incalculable, and hold forth the strongest inducements to men of capital and enterprize, not only in the Manufacture of Iron and Iron implements, but also to the Manufacturer of Cotton and Wool. This site is about 20 miles from Nashville, and 6 from Cumberland river.

In addition to the above, the subscriber also offers for sale on the same terms, 3000 acres of Land in White's bend, from 6 to 12 miles below Nashville, on the margin of Cumberland river, well watered with numerous springs—Also 800 acres opposite the Harpeth Island, 22 miles below Nashville, 400 of which is low ground of first quality, with good springs on the upland—Also 657 acres including the mouth of Harpeth, with a handsome improvement thereon, with 100 acres of cleared land, and first-rate springs. Also, 640 acres of broken land, including what is called Weakley's ferry—Also, 400 acres, including Hamilton's ferry, 300 of which is of superior quality, with 80 acres cleared and a good spring—Also, 2000 acres including Bell's ferry, on hall-bottom lands, no improvements—All of which lie on the margin of Cumberland river.—Also, 640 acres on the east fork of Yellow creek, of superior quality, 4 miles from the river.

Should these works and sites not be disposed of before the 1st of March, I will then receive proposals of partnership, for improving and carrying on the unimproved sites.

The subscriber will also hire out by the year, a set of furnace hands, well skilled in all the different branches of the business, also a considerable number of forge hands.

Letters addressed to me on the above subject at Nashville, will be promptly attended to

It is put up in stone jars, sealed with wax, and the maker's initials impressed upon the cork, with proper directions labelled on the jar, and signed with his own holigraph. RANAWAY from the subscriber, living six miles from Louisville, Jefferson county, Ky. on the 17th day of April last, a negro man named BEN; 27 or 28 years old; about 5 feet 8 or 10 inches high; of a tolerably light color, approaching that of an ordinary mulatto; but his hair is short and curly, like that of negroes generally. He is a little round or stoop shouldered, and stout made; has a short, thick hand, and I think he is left handed; his eyes are a little inclined to be gray, not quite as black as negroes' eyes generally: he has rather a sly, down look when accused with his misconduct; has rather a soft, pleasant speech: he pretends to be a methodist by profession, but he may give that up, as I think he does it to cloak his badness, he may change his name, or he may live under the protection of some white man I will pay Five Hundred Dollars in Specie for the delivery o Ben, to me, at my farm

Pittsburgh, March 4—tf. AGENT.

$500 Reward, in Specie.

RANAWAY from the subscriber, living six miles from Louisville, Jefferson county, Ky. on the 17th day of April last, a negro man named BEN; 27 or 28 years old; about 5 feet 8 or 10 inches high; of a tolerably light color, approaching that of an ordinary mulatto; but his hair is short and curly, like that of negroes generally. He is a little round or stoop shouldered, and stout made; has a short, thick hand, and I think he is left handed; his eyes are a little inclined to be gray, not quite as black as negroes' eyes generally: he has rather a sly, down look when accused with his misconduct; has rather a soft, pleasant speech: he pretends to be a methodist by profession, but he may give that up, as I think he does it to cloak his badness. he may change his name, or he may live under the protection of some white man. I will pay Five Hundred Dollars in Specie for the delivery o Ben, to me, at my farm
